THE KHEDIVE'S SHARES.

An interesting piece of contemporary Egyptian bistery is told in the "Times" of the 8th ollo. by Mr. Levie Wolf, which thoughful Englishmen must read with sensewhat mixed lesings. All's well that ends well, and our negotiations for the acquisition of the Kiber way well indeed. But the story of the who's transaction, as Mr. Wolf tells it, recalls more than one bindeer not certifiable to our statemanship or even to our intelligence, and more about the story of the who's transaction, as Mr. Wolf tells it, recalls more acquisition of every levie of the who's transaction, as Mr. Wolf tells it, recalls more every levie of the control which we seemed through our every levie of the control which we seemed through our very levie of the control of the chair for the control of the Cand from the first, and in the agencies of his aversion histed that it was visuously and impreciable—a sionary and impracticable—as a was largely supported by the British opinion. That was our great body of British opinion. That was our first mistake, and, hed not France been atricken down and impoverished by her great stroggle with Germany immediately after the was completed, it might have cost us dear. Our sailore, at any rate, were quick to realize the importance of the new waterway soon after it was open. Admiral Richards and General Sir Andrew Clarke drew up a report that did not arrest num. Images a commenced to the Administy in 1870, in which they recognized its significance for our commerced assign State, or even into those of an independent company. But these considerations of not seem to knew bad much weight with the same disagness of the season of the the Admiralty in 1870, in which they ognized its significance for our commerce and thy hid that it was no business of ours to "minubren the sharebolders." Me & Lesseps actually came to Regland to make a brugain, but but Lord Tarsuilla, it is aked, refused own to discuss the offers put forward by his agent A. M. d. Lessep could not sell to us, be attempted to sell to others, but the Forts, with our support, finally awed as from this parti-cular flagger, by polaring the web as current of the control of the con-trol of the control of the control of the control of the con-trol of the control of the control of the control of the con-trol of the control of the control of the control of the con-trol of the control of the contr
